Confessions of a Closet Mystic: How I Learned to Connect to Divine Love (and you can too) Julia Turner Hultgren

In March of 1988, while chanting with Wayne Dyer's Meditations for manifesting, Jesus began a conversation with me. Confessions of a Closet Mystic is the story of how I initially refused to listen to him, how he began to encourage and train me as a channel to receive information from him, and finally the story he wants to share with us. It is the story of the ways he learned to connect with divine love through many lifetimes prior to the life where he was Jesus the Christ. It took thirteen lifetimes before becoming the Christ for Jesus to learn to receive and fully become universal wisdom and divine love. These lifetimes run the gamut from buxom Swiss matron to high spirited bandit, to whining incarcerated victim. They fully illustrate that the path to awe and inspiration covers the spectrum of human experience. Finally in his life as the Christ, he shows us how he enhanced the ability to receive universal wisdom with the teachings of shamans and mystics. This grew into a potent discipline where he developed his ability to transform life in miraculous ways. Confessions of a Closet Mystic is actually three layers of story. First, it is the account of the lifetimes I shared with Jesus where he learned to receive universal wisdom. Second it is the description of my current relationships as he coaches me in opening myself to accept the wisdom he wants me to learn. Third, it is a detailed guide communicated to me by Jesus, with the help of his mother, Mary, and the apostle Peter. This guide gives explicit instructions for how we claim the space of being co-creators of universal wisdom and divine love. Confessions of a Closet Mystic is a refreshing, sometimes argumentative, irreverent, funny and deeply loving story. It illuminates the path to deep connection with universal wisdom and divine love. Along the way are answers to questions as diverse as: Why the Lord's Prayer? Why do children die? What was it like to die on the cross? To connect with divine love, no belief system is required, only dedication and desire for relationship with source.
