A Face To Die For Jan Warburton

Pure nostalgia: London in the swinging sixties – about a young graduating art student, Annabel Spencer, and her eventual rise to fame as a fashion designer. It tells how a strikingly beautiful girl whom she meets for a brief period at college becomes pivotal to her success and how these two women's careers and love lives become uncannily entwined. An intriguing love story hampered by loose morals, drug taking and emotional conflict - at a time when anything risqué goes - and frequently does. This novel reveals the scandal and glamour of a fascinatingly decadent and revolutionary period in modern history
