There are wonders and beauties all around us, but do we really see them?

"Art Is Everywhere" shows us how to look more carefully at our everyday world in a way that makes art easily accessible. Instead of struggling to define art, we learn to understand it as a trigger for new and different interpretations of what already surrounds us.

The artist's passion for taking photos of cities -scratches, marks, posters and other objects - led to a two-day workshop, with participants invited to explore with new eyes, and to document their findings with photographs.

This book is the result of that experience.

Each photo carries a story, revealing the unexpected in everyday life in various cities. This illustrated book acts as a kind of toolkit to enable us to decode the world around us in completely fresh ways.

Through ingenious collages and montages, this book inspires us to use art as a lens through which to view our familiar surroundings, altering our expectations of everyday objects and truly blurring the boundary between what is framed and what is not.
