Both the domestic and international consumer protection mechanism are not sound. In the consumption trade, the legitimate rights and interests of the consumers are hard to be protected sufficiently, timely and effectively, and the remote consumer protection is more difficult to be realized. It is particularly disturbing that just like the environmental resources protection that concerns everybody but all people neglect it, the consumer protection also concerns everybody, but many of us still feel that it does not concern us. Governments, non-governmental organizations, international communities do not show sufficient concern and attention to the issue. Now the fact that there is no such an inter-governmental organization is a clear evidence. So this issue is perfunctory and ineffective both domestically and internationally. The consumers who suffer from this problem are deeply dissatisfied so that more and more disputes about consumer rights and interests even turn into a tough public event.
